

Discreet Email to Employees to Enable Personal Issues to be Resolved

Subject Line: IMPORTANT (of possible concern...)

Dear (Employee)

Over the years it has come to my attention that the greatest challenge for each of us is our ability to deal with our own personal issues. We bring in experts to help us identify and address issues within our working environment, but procrastinate when it comes to dealing with our own personal problems.

As part of my commitment to you, I have liaised with reputable personal strategist Jacqui Olliver to provide you with the information required to enable you to overcome some of these personal challenges. You're an important member of my team and I want to ensure you are getting the support and guidance you require.

Sexual, emotional and relationship issues can continually beat us down until even the work we love is no longer satisfying for us. The statistics are alarming: 1 in 3 men suffer from erection problems including premature ejaculation and erectile dysfunction yet only 1 in 4 of those men will seek treatment to end their problem.

Are you suffering in silence?

These problems are exacerbated by associated anxiety and relationship stress, all of which may affect your ability to maintain focus and discipline at work. As you know, being distracted leads to poor judgment, errors in tasks and a breakdown in communication.

See the links below for Jacqui's expert advice on the hidden causes of erection problems – and how to effectively put an end to these problems. Jacqui's unique treatment requires no medication and is recommended by a leading medical oncologist.
